Not content to revile a Magazine that united on its pages some of the best writers on the islands, and under whose well inflicted lash in several articles the reverend gentleman of Makawao sanguine of success. winced not a little, yet with commendable manhood kept his peace until the Magazine was stopped, when this missionary chantioleer steps over to a foreign barnyard to crow his illfavored notes; not content with such post mortem exultation, this would-be Daniel in criticism condemns the Magazine upon his own unsupported assumption of facts.

The Magazine gave Mr. Green a lashing; Mr Green winced; hence I infer that it was a savage attack and, so far as appears, an unprovoked attack upon an unoffending gentleman, who had even commended the first number. Who is to blame if he gets a lashing in return?

But Mr. Fornander disputes Mr. Greens facts, calling them his own unsupported assumption. Now let us look at the facts as Mr. Fornander has quoted Mr. Green. They are, first. That the Sandwich Island Magazine had ceased to be-so Mr. Green had heard-Mr. Fornander will not deny the death after stating that Mr. Greens strictures were post mortem. If he can prove that Mr. Green never heard of the death, perhaps he had better try.

2d. Mr. Green asserts that in his last he remarked that the first number was a decent one. That it was decent I have not the means of knowing, but I think it probable. Mr. Green remarked that it was decent. On this point I will not insist.

3d. Mr. Green cannot say the like of any other number. Does Mr. Fornander deny this fact? Has Mr. Green contradicted himself by any unguarded commendatory remarks? 4th. It died too early to give the Vigilance Committe a cut, &c. Perhaps Mr. Fornander will inform us when the sad demise took place and how long it was after the Vigilance Committee was organised. As to Mr. Green's opinion, fairly inferable, that the Magazine would have cut the Committee had it lived, Mr. Green may have been mistaken; men often

5th. It had become insipid and vile. Here is a fact state? and the proof is the advocacy by that of the the of wine, tobacco and the licensing of houses for the sale of ardent spirits. The advocating being proved, the insipid and vile becomes

Mr. Fornander's honesty to suppose that he will deny that he is personally an advocate for these things. The use of such expressions as "Missionary chanticlear." " Barnyard," &c. may have had a tendency to course the mind of Mr. Green upon the great! questions of insipidity and vileness

6th. Mr. Green thinks the loss of this Magazine

7th. Mr. Green has seen but one note of lament on account of the decease of the Magazine and that was from the Polynesian. Another fact. Yours, uable journal-through which right and wrong can be investigated-to correct a false accusation against me, in your last paper. I am either wilfully wronged or my statements misrepresented.

I did not charge the talented lecturer, Mr. Hyde, with horse-stealing, but he (Mr. H.) charged a whole community with dishonesty, in their absence, which, in any other cause but that of Mormonism, would be India Company. considered mean and cowardly. To prove his assertions, he quoted the words of that noble-minded man of God, who spareth not highest or lowest when they err. Sir, I only mentioned two cases which were personal, and to the point, but if they were considered impudent, or out of place. I humbly beg pardon. But sir, I hope I shall not deceive my fellowmen by advancing anything I do not believe, or cannot prove. I can bring abundant testimony of gentlemen now on these Islands, to prove that the horse alluded to on the evening of the lecture, was given to the company of missionaries, of which Mr. H. was captain. He acknowledged before the audience that he sold the animal, and pocketed the money.

Mr. H. also aknowledged before his an lience, that he preached and advocated what he did not believe himself, (Polygamy,) whereby many must have been deceived. What reason does he give for this? He wanted to convince himself that the wickedness, misery, and abominations he was for so many years eye witness to were right in the sight of God. What logic, awful! awful!! thus to trifle with immortal souls. What can an honest, well-disposed commu- Six Trustees to fill the places of the class, whose term of office nity think of such a man. Now, sir, from these facts I do not hesitate to charge the talented gentleman with deceit and false-Yours, most respectfully, F. EVANS.
